PIOCHE, NEVADA, FRIDAY APRIL 13 1906

PRINCELY FEES PAID ATTORNEYS.

Several princely fees have been paid to Reno attorneys as a result of the compromise settlement reached in the celebrated Johnson grubstake suit at Tonopah this week. The firms of Mack & Farrington, Pike & Jones and Smith & Wall, all of Reno, participated in the case. The Ladd children, of Reno, heirs of the late George W. Ladd, who was one of the discoverers of the noted properties, have also secured a valid title of their interests. They will come out with mining stocks with a marketable value of about $150,000. Mack & Farrington received as a fee the handsome sum of $25,000.

The compromise ends one of the most noted grubstake suits ever entered in Nevada. About two years ago George W. Ladd, of Reno, and J. O. Johnson, of Tonopah, were grubstaked by Zeb Kendall and H. H. Clark, who gave them $75 to prospect for sixty days. Under the terms of a written agreement the prospectors were to locate everything found within sixty days in the names of the four, Ladd to have a third, Johnson a third, and Kendall and Clark a third jointly.

The two prospectors started southward and after being out for several weeks ran out of money, water and provisions. They suffered frightful tortures and finally made their way to the Johnny mine, where they were compelled to accept work to obtain food and other supplies. Finally O. D. Kendall and a man named Benson were sent from Tonopah to get a report from them. Benson and Kendall found the two recuperating from their experience and it was finally agreed that Johnson and Kendall should return to Tonopah with the specimens found, after which they should make a return trip with supplies.

They parted at the Davis ranch and Ladd and Benson claimed that Johnson there threw up his contract, but Johnson denies this. A short time afterward the great discoveries on Ladd mountain were made by Ladd and Benson, who located sixty-three claims of remarkable richness. They left out the name of Johnson in making the locations and he accordingly sued for a one-third interest.

By the terms of the compromise Johnson gets 60,000 shares in the Bullfrog Mining Company, 60,000 in the Mizpah-Bullfrog and a one-tenth interest in the remaining sixteen claims on Ladd mountain, two of which are extensions containing the celebrated Montgomery-Shoshone ledge.

The stocks set apart to him are valued at $144,000, one-half of which went to his attorneys, L. H. Rogers, Mack & Farrington and C. E. McIntosh. For the defendants there appeared Stewart & Martinson, Pike & Jones, Smith & Wall and Key Pittman.—Reno Journal.

It is stated the secretary of the interior will shortly issue an order for the leasing of public lands. This will mean great changes in the manner of conducting the sheep and cattle business in the west. In order to secure grazing privileges on the public lands, it will be necessary for the owners of stock to lease the lands they expect to use. Promiscuous grazing as in the past will be cut out. It is believed by the authorities at Washington that by leasing of the public lands the grass will go much further than at present, and that overstocking of the public range will be done away with. The outcome of this innovation, should the order be issued as expected, will be watched with great interest.—Williams News.

The Tonopah Sun is making a vigorous fight against the wild-cat mining companies.

Thomas Mulligan, author of the familiar expression: "It's a wild night on Treasure Hill and poor old Mulligan broke," died in San Francisco a few days ago. Mulligan was one of the earliest arrivals at Treasure Hill, White Pine county during the mining excitement there in 1869. The town is 10,000 feet above sea level and it was during a fierce blizzard on a midwinter night when Mulligan, after making a losing at gambling, used the expression quoted, Mulligan was well known on the Comstock, where he resided many years.—Virginia Chronicle.

Fifty thousand more in bullion tax was collected in Nye county in 1905 than in 1904.
